A complete description of The Clubhouse at The Everett and its amenities as well as additional amenities common to all guests of the resort are provided in greater detail below.

In June 2018, The Everett resort property was purchased and is now under new ownership. During 2018 - 2019, The Clubhouse at The Everett underwent extensive renovation with the new owners taking great care to honor and retain as much of each building's original structure and design as possible while at the same time, providing guests with all new and modern amenities. The response by locals familiar with this beloved property as well as guests who have witnessed it for the very first time has been nothing short of remarkable. The revival of this beautiful historical property, once a thriving resort during Eagle River's resort era, has been recaptured and ultimately transformed into a uniquely vintage vacation rental resort.

Historical Notes

Local lore has it that Famed Hollywood movie actress, Joan Crawford stayed at The Clubhouse when she was a guest at The Everett resort. The Clubhouse was built in 1910 and was the 2nd building to be built upon The Everett Resort property. The Clubhouse originally functioned as the resort's game room and was the social hub of the resort until the Marina Bar was built, ultimately becoming the entertainment epicenter of the resort. Once the Marina Bar was in full swing, The Clubhouse was utilized as staff quarters.

The Everett Sunroom (formerly known as the Sun Parlor), was built in 1920 and originally functioned as The Everett Resort's Main Lobby and Office until 1951. The resort's front desk was originally located in the near the fireplace and featured cubby holes that held the mail for the many guests that would spend the entire summer enjoying The Everett resort.
